Federal Building Receives Beautification to Grounds

Heber City (LRJ) "I want to maintain a pleasant working environment for all of my friends who spend so many hours each week working here at the Federal Building." So, after consulting with Lynn Forakis, Post Master, Jim Jenkins was able to bring about some beautification changes that everyone who goes to the U.S. Post Office have noticed and approved.

It was last winter that Jenkins, building maintenance and gro-funding that was not tax related. All that was needed was good weather and the already eager will of the man who would do it. Jenkins creative efforts were unleashed after only fifteen months at the post office.

With a sod cutter rented from the local tool rental store, Jenkins removed 750 square feet of lawn. Twelve cubic yards of sandy loam and dry manure were brought in to form the raised beds. The old shrubs and protection, and warmth. The roses are bearing beautifully now. The walkway beds are planted with annuals now, but bulbs will go in this fall and spring flowers will show color early next year.

"It's a pleasure to go to the post office," said a patron. "A nice change, thanks to someone willing to work."

Each change brings its challenge, though. There are those who cut across the lawns. Others jump the flower beds. Dogs walk
